October 31, 2016

Classroom Resources

Minnesota Educational Theatre Association (META)

Looking for great theatre education resources to use in your classrooms? Visit META's resource page to discover new tools for Shakespeare, monologues, musicals, play guides, and Simply Scripts (a place to read scripts online). META is a professional theatre education organization dedicated to enhancing the teaching practice of K-12 theatre educators across the state. The organization is a great tool for new and returning teachers alike, especially for those looking to find professional support or to share wisdom from their classroom. ## The Changing Story

By Linda Buturian

From curriculum development to pedagogical choices, educator and writer Linda Buturian shares ways to embed media arts through digital storytelling into everyday classroom experiences. Buturian's scholarship encourages schools to tap into the power of visual storytelling as a transformative learning experience. The Changing Story is a free e-book available by download through Creative Commons. It is particularly well-suited for school districts across the state and for educators interested in embedding media arts or integrating technology into their classroom.
